Luke is the solitary Gentile writer of the Bible, yet his dual books of the Gospel of Luke and the book of Acts constitute about one-fourth of the New Testament. By training he was a physician (Col. 4:14).Â Luke provides first-rate testimony for the genuineness of Jesusâ€™ miracles. A scientist by profession, he had thoroughly investigated the claims of Christâ€™s supernatural works (he mentions twenty of them, six of which are unique to him), and he treats them as historical reality.Â The present tense of the verbs marks the progress of the journey. Obviously, therefore, John was describing the early part of the trip (during the dark), which may have involved a considerable distance, whereas Mark speaks of the latter portion of the journey (after sunrise). There is no discrepancy! When Jesus reads in the synagogue in our gospel reading on 27 Jan, it is as if Luke is saying to us: â€œif you want to understand Jesus and his mission, this is where you must beginâ€™.Â This infancy story is a mini-gospel in itself in so far as it discloses the identity of Jesus and offers us examples of true discipleship. For instance, we learn from the words of the angel to the shepherds who Jesus was; he was Saviour, Christ and Lord (2:11). Mary, the mother of Jesus, teaches us how to be a disciple when she says to Gabriel, â€œBe it done to me according to your wordâ€™ (1:38) and we meet also a procession of minor disciples, like Zechariah and Elizabeth before the birth of Jesus, the shepherds at his birth, and Simeon and Anna after it.

In Luke's account of Jesus Christ's final journey to Jerusalem, we see the Savior giving us a clear pattern for how to follow Him. Just four months before the Savior's death, "when the time was come that he should be received up, he steadfastly [or resolutely] set his face to go to Jerusalem" (Luke 9:51).¹ In the preceding weeks, Jesus Christ had carefully prepared His disciples for the difficulties and transcendent spiritual events that lay ahead. While drawing closer to Jerusalem, Jesus directed His disciples to count the cost of discipleship "to put forethought into their decision to follow Him (see Luke 14:25-28). He did not seek to sugarcoat the difficult realities they would encounter if they continued as His disciples. Our Lord led His disciples away from familiar ground into the comparative seclusion of the country round Caesarea Philippi, in order to tell them plainly of His death. He knew how terrible the announcement would be, and He desired to make it in some quiet spot, where there would be collectedness and leisure to let it sink into their minds. What a journey that was! He, with the heavy secret filling His thoughts; they, dimly aware of something absorbing Him, in which they had no part. And at last, "in the way," as if moved by some sudden impulse-like that which we all know, leading us to speak out abruptly what we have long waited to say-He gives them a share in the burden of His thought. A wider circle hears the terms of discipleship than heard the announcement of Christ's own sufferings.

Jesus According to Luke. A Gospel's Unique Contribution to What We Know of Christ. By Mark Abbott, Instructor of Preaching and Winter Quarter Lectio Writer. Luke depicts Jesus in his short-lived ministry as deeply compassionate — caring for the poor, the oppressed, and the marginalized of that culture, such as Samaritans, Gentiles, and women. Whereas Matthew traces Jesus' genealogy to Abraham, father of the Jewish people, Luke goes back to Adam, parent of us all. Again and again, Luke zeros in on women, who were seen as second-class citizens in the first century. Luke's Jesus is on a journey with us. While I am very grateful for the vital diversity in the four-gospel story we have of Jesus, I celebrate this wonderful story of Jesus according to Luke.
