The "Founding Fathers" as defined by the above to mean a very large group of Patriots including not only the Signers and the Framers but also those who participated in the creation of the United States of American in their roles of politicians, statesmen, soldiers, diplomats and ordinary citizens. Many brave men took part in winning American independence from the British in many different ways. Some of the names appeared on more than one list.Â Founding Fathers - the Framers A number of Founding Fathers are referred to as the Framers. These were the 55 men who attended what is now known as the Federal Convention in Philadelphia. These delegates (the Framers) were prominent, well educated men of their times.
