Dominique-René de Lerma papers

De Lerma, Dominique-René

Papers, circa 1960 to 1993 and undated, including correspondence and research files, records from his employment at Indiana University, Morgan State University, and Columbia College Chicago and materials from his consulting work with the Afro-American Music Opportunities Association (AAMOA). Dr. de Lerma served as Director of the CBMR from 1990–1993. There are also photographs and sound recordings in the collection. The sizable donation of books is incorporated into the general library holdings.

79 Boxes, magnetic media (5-1/4" floppy discs) plus 1 binder (unboxed), circa 46 linear feet
622 volumes; 786 analog sound discs (primarily LPs, some 78s).

Donated by Dominique-René de Lerma, 1990–1992.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE:

Dominique-René de Lerma (1928–) is a prominent, pioneering scholar in black music research. After a career as a performing oboist, de Lerma received a PhD in musicology from Indiana University in 1958. Subsequently he taught at Indiana University (1963–1976), at Morgan State University (1976–1990), and at Peabody Conservatory (1983–1990). He served as Director of the Center for Black Music Research at Columbia College Chicago from 1990 to 1993. Currently, he teaches at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wisconsin. Dr. de Lerma is the author of several books, including the four-volume Bibliography of Black Music (Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1981).

SCOPE NOTE:

The de Lerma papers reflect the interests, research, and activities he pursued in his career as musicologist, educator and administrator in the field of higher education and nonprofit musical organizations. The print materials are divided into three main series, with subgroupings by format, size or organization. The sound recording collection is indexed and catalogued using Dr. de Lerma's own card system; the large book collection, with the exception of a box of annotated books, is catalogued and shelved with the regular library holdings.

Dominique-René de Lerma corresponded with composers, performers, and other scholars and kept subject files about them as well. His original filing system, combining correspondence and subject files, has been retained; unsorted items received from the donor have been incorporated. Incoming correspondence is present; outgoing letters were not always kept. In addition, de Lerma kept newspaper and magazine clippings, concert programs, promotional materials, and other ephemera. These “vertical files” are part of Series I, which forms the bulk of the collection. This series also includes 2 boxes of photographs, and related media (computer files of the subject file lists).

Correspondence, records, and other materials from his employment at three institutions make up most of Series II. These files, which were too voluminous to retain in the main series, are filed chronologically and by subject. Two additional sub-series consist of other administrative materials, including grant proposals and records from his association with the AAMOA.

De Lerma’s files on the Afro-American Music Opportunities Association (AAMOA) include correspondence and other papers, dated 1970–1978. The AAMOA, based in Minneapolis, Minnesota, was a non-profit organization devoted to promoting music by black composers. Dominique-René de Lerma served AAMOA as a paid consultant from around 1973 to 1976, when he resigned because of the organization’s financial problems. The series contains his correspondence with C. Edward Thomas, AAMOA Executive Director, plus additional correspondence concerning AAMOA business and activities. Also included are financial records and minutes, materials concerning two AAMOA symposia, scattered copies of AAMOA Reports, the organization’s newsletter, and profiles of individuals interested in black music mailed to AAMOA after the questionnaire was published in the newsletter. For related materials in Series I, see files on conductor Paul Freeman and various composers for correspondence related to the Black Composers Series, an AAMOA project with CBS Records.

The de Lerma files are very broad in their scope, covering classical music, a topic of most of the correspondence with scholars, composers, and performers, but also encompassing popular and traditional music forms, and jazz. With the papers were received a substantial collection of scores by black composers (8 boxes in all, including oversized) which are arranged as Series III.

The sound recordings received with the collection are shelved separately as Series IV, and organized according to de Lerma’s own filing system, which has been retained to facilitate access and retrieval. Books received with the collection are incorporated into the general library holdings with the exception of one box of annotated volumes and presentation copies, arranged as part of Series I, subseries 3b. Also included in the printed materials (subseries 3a) are 3 boxes of single issues, newsletters and miscellaneous small publications.
