4. Original plan and construction: An old photo in Henn's The Story of the River Road, shows the original structure as a two-story rectangular building of wood frame and clapboard construction (southern section of building). Erected in 1861 by Charles R. Peters, the original hotel is believed to have had about "ten sleeping rooms" (Beers, p. 571. Mrs. Pipher, Interview Aug. 5, 1971).
5. Alterations and additions: While numerous additions and alterations have occurred, there are no dates available for the expansion and modernization of the hotel. However, it appears that the present structure was built in several stages by Harry and Edwin Peters, Charles R. Peters' sons.

The first major addition appears to have been the large three-story rectangular section to the north. The construction of a third story and a large bay on the southwest corner were later additions.

By 1900, the Peters House Hotel contained "75 rooms, supplied with running water and all the accessories of a model hotel." (Beers, p. 571. Mrs. Pipher). Its character and use remained unaltered for the next seventy-two years. The hotel was demolished in 1972.

B. Historical Events and Persons Connected with the Structure:

Henry Peters (1786-1857) first purchased land at the site of the hotel in 1813 from John Heller, "Innkeeper". For $4,400, Henry Peters purchased 23 acres, 3 perches "on the Big Bushkill Creek... including the house and Saw mill..." and about 60 acres on the little Bushkill Creek.

Heller's house evidently became Henry Peters place of residence and has been described as "a humble dwelling-house," a "log house containing one window with four window lights" (Mathews, p.p. 644, 928). Located on the old stage route from Stroudsburg to Port Jervis, the structure functioned as a "public house for the entertainment of travelers," although the Lehman Township Tax Records do not list Henry Peters as an "Innkeeper" until 1835 (Walters, E. D., Interview, July 30, 1971).

Upon the death of Henry Peters, the property on which "there is erected a tavern house, grist mill, Saw mill, and several other buildings," eventually passed to two sons, Samuel G. and Charles R. Peters (1822-1867) (The gristmill was recorded separately by HABS as the Bushkill Mill (Peters Mill) HABS No. PA-1137). Charles R. Peters evidently acquired the hotel, for beginning in 1859, the Tax Rolls list him as an "Innkeeper." In 1861, Charles R. Peters is believed to have erected a "hotel with about ten sleeping rooms". The original Peters residence may have stood adjacent to the new structure until it was demolished prior to the enlargement of the 1861 wing.

After Charles R. Peter's decease in 1867, The hotel continued in operation under the direction of his widow. Harry (1859-1931) and Edwin Peters inherited the hotel and continued to enlarge it.

In 1947 the Hotel passed out of the Peters Family for the first time. It was leased until 1970 to Hi Friedman.

PART II. PROJECT INFORMATION

This project was undertaken by the Historic American Buildings Survey (HABS) in cooperation with the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, supervised by the National Park Service and funded by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The project, which extended from 1967 to 1971, was under the general direction of James C. Massey, Chief of HABS. This historical data was written by Lynn Beebe Weaver, project historian, in 1971. The written data was edited for transmittal to the Library of Congress in the summer of 1980 by Kent R. Newell of the HABS staff. The photographs were taken by George Eisenman in August, 1970.
